

THE ESTATE EXIT PLAN

A clear plan for what to do next—without guesswork

Brendan Gustafson

Broker Associate | Kentwood Real Estate City Properties

Real estate advisor specializing in inherited property situations across the Denver metro area.

01

The Situation

If you've inherited a property, you're likely dealing with more than just real estate.

- Multiple decision-makers — siblings, family members, trustees
- A home that may need repairs or updates
- Uncertainty around timing, pricing, and next steps
- Emotional attachment layered into financial decisions

Most people don't need more information.

They need clarity.

Most inherited property decisions aren't about the house—they're about alignment, timing, and execution.

02

The Estate Exit Plan

A straightforward way to move from uncertainty → decision → execution.

STEP 1

Clarify the Situation

Before making decisions, understand:

- Who is involved in decision-making
- Ownership structure — estate, trust, or individuals
- Timeline expectations
- Whether everyone is aligned

Most problems start here—not at the property.

STEP 2

Evaluate the Property

Not everything needs to be fixed.

- Overall condition — cosmetic vs. functional issues
- Location and buyer demand
- What actually impacts value vs. what doesn't

The goal is not perfection—it's positioning.

STEP 3

Compare Your Options

There is no one “right” path. Only the right path for your situation.

- Sell as-is → fastest, least effort
- Prepare + list → higher price potential, more coordination
- Investor/off-market sale → simplicity and speed
- Hold or rent → defer the decision

Each option has trade-offs. The key is seeing them clearly.

STEP 4

Build the Strategy

Once the path is clear:

- Align on pricing approach
- Decide on level of preparation, if any
- Set expectations for timeline and process

This is where confidence replaces second-guessing.

STEP 5

Execute Cleanly

The goal:

- Minimize friction
- Avoid surprises
- Keep all parties informed and aligned

From listing to closing, execution matters as much as strategy.

03

Common Mistakes to Avoid

These are the ones that cost people time, money, and unnecessary stress:

- Over-improving the property before selling
- Letting one person control decisions without alignment
- Waiting too long hoping for a clearer answer
- Taking the first offer without context or comparison
- Treating it like a typical sale when it's not

Inherited properties are different. The approach should be too.

04

A Better Way to Approach It

You don't need to have everything figured out.

You just need:

- A clear understanding of your options
 - A plan that fits your situation
 - Someone who can help you execute it properly
-

05

If You Need Help

Every situation is different.

If you want to talk through your situation, I can help you map out the right next steps—clearly and without pressure.

Brendan Gustafson

Broker Associate | Kentwood Real Estate City Properties

📞 720-234-9375

✉️ bgustafson@kentwood.com

inheritedpropertyadvisory.com

Inherited Property Advisory is a specialized real estate service offered by Brendan Gustafson and is not a separate real estate brokerage. All real estate brokerage services are provided through Kentwood Real Estate.

This guide is for informational purposes only and does not constitute legal, tax, or financial advice. Please consult your attorney, CPA, or financial advisor regarding your specific situation.